I HEREBY STATE:

That I REQUEST AND AUTHORIZE Doctor _____, graduated in Medicine and Surgery, with medical license number _____, to perform upon me a treatment known as _____, having chosen this instead of the alternatives, namely _____.

I KNOW and ACCEPT the physician's professional training to perform this treatment.

The substances and machines involved have been authorized for use in aesthetic medicine, and show the CE brand and its corresponding sanitary registration number.

I CONFIRM that the treatment mentioned above has been fully explained to me by the physician in words I can understand, including typical risks involved, undesired effects, the risks specific to me, and also discomfort or, occasionally, pain I may feel with normal post-treatment. I have also been told about other options available in the market, together with pros and cons of each one. Taking this into account, I have chosen the treatment described above.

I have also been informed, in terms of probability, about the results of the procedure according to references from comparative scientific literature, and the professional's previous experience executing these procedures.

BRIEF EXPLANATION OF THE TREATMENT:

This procedure consists of:

- Infiltration with local or trunk anesthesia in the indicated area.
- Intervention or treatment _____.
- Removal of sutures 5-10 days later.
- Based on the procedure, it is required to take antibiotics for a period of _____ days.

Side effects that may occur include, among others:

- Allergy or intolerance to local anesthesia, hemorrhage and drowsiness on the day of the intervention.

Scarring: All surgeries leave a scar. Although the wound is expected to heal well after a surgical procedure, abnormal scars can occur in the skin and deeper tissues. Scars can be unattractive and have a different color than the surrounding skin. The scar appearance can also vary within the scar itself, it can present variations in outline, and it may "frown" due to excess skin. Scars can be asymmetrical (appear different on the right and left sides of the body). There is the possibility of visible marks in the skin caused by sutures. In some cases, scars may require a surgical review or treatment.

Changes in skin sensitivity: It is common to experience a decrease in (or loss of) skin sensitivity in the areas where a surgical procedure was performed. This usually resolves with time. The decrease in (or complete loss of) skin sensitivity is rare, and may not totally resolve.

Post-treatment complications: inflammation, change of color, hematoma, infection. Although it is very rare, there exists the possibility of embolisms. Dehiscence of the wound, seromas, atrophic or hypertrophic scars, keloids, coloring alterations.

There is always the possibility of residual irregularities in the skin, on both sides of the wound, or "dog ears", as well as folds of skin when there is too much remaining skin. This can be corrected in time, or through surgical procedure.

Slow Healing: There may be a rupture or slow healing of the wound. Some areas may not heal normally, and they can take a long time to scar. Some areas of the skin may die. This may require frequent changes of the bandages, or additional surgery to remove unhealed tissue. Smokers are at a greater risk of skin loss and healing complications.

To prevent these risks, I have been informed that I need to follow some preoperative rules the Hospital has given me, as well as notify them about any abnormality that may have occurred in the last few hours. I have been given the following recommendations concerning pretreatment: avoid exposure to the sun and UVA radiation 7 days prior to the treatment. Do not take ASA (aspirin) or alcohol 3 days prior to the treatment. Do not use creams with vitamin K 7 days prior to the treatment.

I have been correctly informed, even in writing (information documents) and/or using images, about this treatment's characteristics: its fundamentals, the manner and details of its execution, its action mechanisms, its immediate effects, the process and evolution of the necessary supplementary treatments to observe in the following days, weeks or months, the cares and precautions to adopt in the following hours or days, the variability of the time necessary to fully recover; therefore, I acknowledge that no guarantee can be given to me as to the date when I can resume my regular activities (emotional, social, work and sports).

I ATTEST I have not left out or altered any data when showing my surgical medical history and records, specially those concerning allergies and diseases or personal risks.

The Medical History and results from tests performed on the patient don't advise against using the appropriate medical procedure when there isn't, a priori, any risks that may have determined the failure of the technique objectively considered, and which means to meet your expectations.

I RECOGNIZE that, during the treatment, unforeseen conditions may necessitate different procedures than those described above. Therefore, I hereby expressly authorize said procedures, including my transfer to a hospital center. In case of complications during the intervention, I authorize the Hospital to request the assistance they deem necessary from other specialists, in their best professional judgment.

If, during treatment, the healthcare staff was accidentally exposed to my blood, according to the principles of good medical practice I have been informed of the need to perform the proper analytical determinations on my blood, related to potential pathologies of blood transmission, to adopt the most suitable preventive measures.

I AGREE to do my best to follow the doctor's instructions to the letter before, during and after the treatment mentioned above. I take responsibility for complying with post treatment measures recommended by the Hospital, as well as attending control visits suggested by the doctor.

I UNDERSTAND that the goal of the treatment is to improve my appearance, with the possibility that some imperfection remains and that the result may not be what I expected. In this sense, I have been informed that the aesthetic result of the treatment depends on factors like how easily you scar, and the formation or non-formation of keloids. I am aware that the medical field is not an exact science, and that absolute perfection cannot be guaranteed. I understand the result may not be as expected and acknowledge that I haven't been given any guarantee at all.

Medical action might not end in itself, and subsequent treatment action might be necessary to reach the goal you're consenting to.

The cost of the treatment includes several charges for the services provided. The total includes your doctor's fees and the cost of materials, equipment or product. The charges for this procedure don't include possible future costs for additional procedures of your choice, or that you require to review, optimize or complete your result. There may be additional charges due to complications arising from the treatment. Charges for secondary treatments concerning check-ups and charges that haven't been previously arranged will also be your responsibility. By signing the consent for this procedure, you acknowledge you have been informed about its risks and consequences and take responsibility for the medical decisions made, together with the economical costs of any future treatments.

I AUTHORIZE the taking of photographs and videos for an appropriate diagnostic evaluation, and for the control of the assessment and results. I also authorize the taking of photographs of the operated area for scientific, educational or clinical purposes, and I understand that their use is not a violation of privacy or confidentiality, rights to which I am entitled.

I KNOW my data will be treated in an automated manner, which I have authorized after my rights have been explained to me pursuant to the LOPD (Spanish Organic Act on Data Protection) in force: rights of access, rectification, cancellation and objection established by the Act, and after expressing I can address the Clinic in writing, notwithstanding the provisions of Section 8 of the Act about health-related data. With my signature, I give my express consent for my personal data to be handled by the CLINIC for their own purposes.

I am aware that my signature and this consent don't assume any kind of waiver to future claims, both clinical and legal. I am also aware that I can withdraw my signature from this consent at any time prior to the execution of the treatment.

I have clarified any doubts about everything that has been mentioned above, and I fully understand this CONSENT DOCUMENT, standing by each and all of its points; by signing the document, I ratify and consent to the execution of the treatment.
