I HEREBY STATE:

That I REQUEST AND AUTHORIZE Doctor _____
_____, graduated in Medicine and Surgery, with medical license number _____, to perform upon me a treatment known as SKIN TREATMENTS WITH MICROPUNCTURE SYSTEMS (MICRO-ROLLER OR DERMAPEN), having chosen this instead of the alternatives, namely _____.

I KNOW and ACCEPT the physician's professional training to perform this treatment.

The substances and machines involved have been authorized for use in aesthetic medicine, and show the CE brand and its corresponding sanitary registration number.

I CONFIRM that the treatment mentioned above has been fully explained to me by the physician in words I can understand, including typical risks involved, undesired effects, the risks specific to me, and also discomfort or, occasionally, pain I may feel with normal post-treatment. I have also been told about other options available in the market, together with pros and cons of each one. Taking this into account, I have chosen the treatment described above.

I have also been informed, in terms of probability, about the results of the procedure according to references from comparative scientific literature, and the professional's previous experience executing these procedures.

BRIEF EXPLANATION OF THE TREATMENT:

Skin is an impassable barrier keeping us away from external agents that may damage our body. This is why applying actives into the skin is a challenge that goes back many years. Micropuncture (micro-roller or dermapen) is an effective procedure that, aside from making the penetration of actives in the deeper layers of the skin easier, it is, in itself, a skin regenerator due to collagen stimulation produced by the multiple punctures. It is a microneedle-based medical device that, when applied on the skin, it creates microlesions that help repair the dermal matrix by stimulating the production of collagen and elastin. At the same time, it creates microholes that act like tunnels, in a way that, if you want to combined them, actives can quickly and effectively access the deeper layers of the skin.

INDICATIONS

Conditions like damage caused by sun exposure, wrinkles, irregular pigmentation, flaccidity, cellulite, alopecia, acne scars, or stretch marks may be treated with this procedure.

In some cases, this technique could be performed at the same time as other medical or surgical procedures.

CONTRAINDICATIONS

This treatment is not recommended in cases of skin cancer, psoriasis, active infections (herpes, warts), open wounds, active acne, or if you are under treatment with chemotherapy/radiotherapy or isotretinoin.

In case of taking anticoagulants, it is recommended to discontinue them three days prior to the procedure, or to carefully control your hemostasis; based on this assumption, there is also the possibility of increased hematomas.

RISKS OF THE TREATMENT WITH MICROPUNCTURE SYSTEMS

There are risks and complications associated with the treatment with micropuncture systems. Prior to treatment, we suggest you tell your doctor about your family and personal histories of allergies, coagulation or scarring disorders, history of gynecological endocrines, current medications, cardiopulmonary diseases, presence of prosthetic, pacemaker, or history of herpes simplex.

Follow all your doctor's instructions, both prior and after the treatment.

Although most patients do not experience the following complications listed below, you should discuss each one of them with your doctor to make sure you understand the risks, potential complications and consequences of the treatment with micropuncture systems.

Scratches: It is a frequent effect that will resolve in a few days or weeks. If they occur, you should not touch the scabs, which must resolve on their own, and don't leave sequelae.

Infection: Infections are rare, but bacterial or viral infections may occur. To prevent them, it is very important that you avoid using your cellphone or wearing makeup within hours after treatment. If you have a history of infections due to the Herpes Simplex virus around the mouth, an infection may reappear after facial treatment with micropuncture systems. To prevent an infection due to this virus, specific medications must be prescribed before the procedure. If any kind of skin infection occurs, additional treatments may be necessary, including antibiotics.

Chlorine burns: Caused by the use of disinfectants, they are mild and resolve in about 5-7 days.

Change of Color: Permanent darkening of the skin has been described after a procedure with micropuncture systems, most of the times associated with inadequate sun protection during the post-treatment period, or due to the use of retinoic acid immediately after treatment, so it is recommended not to use it for a week. Redness after the procedure is frequent, which may last for a short period of time (3-5 hours). With fine, fragile skin, it may last longer than expected.

Recurrence of Skin Lesions: Skin lesions can reoccur after the procedure, and, in some situations, additional treatment may be necessary.

Allergic Reactions: In very rare cases, allergic reactions have been described. The needles of micropuncture systems are made of stainless steel, with a nickel content of around 8%, being unlikely to cause an allergic reaction. In rare cases, local allergies to active agents and/or preservatives used in cosmetics or topical preparations have been observed. Allergic reactions may require additional treatment.

Cancer or skin diseases: This procedure does not offer protection against the future development of skin cancer or other diseases.

Sunburns: Always use sun protection and avoid sun exposure within 5 days after treatment with micropuncture systems.

Cleansing Effect: The cleansing effect might occur 2-3 days after the procedure, with the appearance of small "pimples" similar to acne, which will spontaneously disappear.

Absence of permanent results: The treatment with micropuncture systems may not completely improve or prevent the indication for which this procedure was performed. No technique can reverse the aging signs of skin. You may have to continue a maintenance program after this procedure.

Poor Result: There is the possibility that this procedure causes poor results, leading to the occurrence of crusting and permanent changes in skin color. You may disagree with the final results of the treatment with micropuncture systems.

Scarring: Although a good healing after the procedure is expected, abnormal scars can occur both in the skin and in deep tissues. In rare cases, keloid scars may occur. Scars can be unsightly and have a different color than the surrounding skin.

Additional treatments may be necessary to treat abnormal scarring.

Unknown Risks: There is the possibility that additional risks factors are discovered.

Anesthesia: Based on the patient's pain threshold, topical anesthesia may be applied to reduce the sensation of pain when applying the treatment with micropuncture systems. The application of any kind of anesthesia involves a risk. There is the possibility of complications and lesions.

POST-TREATMENT CARES

- Do not put your cellphone near the punctured area within the following 4-6 hours.
- The first night, sleep with a pillow as sterilised as possible.
- Do not use any kind of creams, photoprotectors or makeup until 12 hours after treatment.

Many variable conditions may impact the long-term result of the treatment with micropuncture systems. Even though risks and complications are rare, the risks mentioned are particularly associated with this procedure. Other risks and complications can occur, but they are even more uncommon. If there are complications, other treatments may be necessary.

I have been correctly informed, even in writing (information documents) and/or using images, about this treatment's characteristics: its fundamentals, the manner and details of its execution, its action mechanisms, its immediate effects, the process and evolution of the necessary supplementary treatments to observe in the following days, weeks or months, the cares and precautions to adopt in the following hours or days, the variability of the time necessary to fully recover; therefore, I acknowledge that no guarantee can be given to me as to the date when I can resume my regular activities (emotional, social, work and sports).

I ATTEST I have not left out or altered any data when showing my surgical medical history and records, specially those concerning allergies and diseases or personal risks.

The Medical History and results from tests performed on the patient don't advise against using the appropriate medical procedure when there isn't, a priori, any risks that may have determined the failure of the technique objectively considered, and which means to meet your expectations.

I RECOGNIZE that, during the treatment, unforeseen conditions may necessitate different procedures than those described above. Therefore, I hereby expressly authorize said procedures, including my transfer to a hospital center. In case of complications during the treatment, I authorize the Hospital to request the assistance they deem necessary from other specialists, in their best professional judgment.

I HAVE BEEN INFORMED that the number of sessions and/or amount of product necessary to obtain the desired effect is only illustrative, being impossible to know the exact number of sessions that will be necessary in advance, because each patient's absorption/reaction is different. Results are obtained with greater efficacy if the treatment performed is supplemented with other treatments that will improve its effects.

If, during treatment, the healthcare staff was accidentally exposed to my blood, according to the principles of good medical practice I have been informed of the need to perform the proper analytical determinations on my blood, related to potential pathologies of blood transmission, to adopt the most suitable preventive measures.

I AGREE to do my best to follow the doctor's instructions to the letter before, during and after the treatment mentioned above. I take responsibility for complying with post treatment measures recommended by the Hospital, as well as attending control visits suggested by the doctor.

I UNDERSTAND that the goal of the treatment is to improve my appearance, with the possibility that some imperfection remains and that the result may not be what I expected. In this sense, I have been informed that the aesthetic result of the treatment depends on factors like how easily you scar, and the formation or non-formation of keloids. I am aware that the medical field is not an exact science, and that absolute perfection cannot be guaranteed. I understand the result may not be as expected and acknowledge that I haven't been given any guarantee at all.

Medical action might not end in itself, and subsequent treatment action might be necessary to reach the goal you're consenting to.

The cost of the treatment includes several charges for the services provided. The total includes your doctor's fees and the cost of materials, equipment or product. The charges for this procedure don't include possible future costs for additional procedures of your choice, or that you require to review, optimize or complete your result. There may be additional charges due to complications arising from the treatment. Charges for secondary treatments concerning check-ups and charges that haven't been previously arranged will also be your responsibility. By signing the consent for this procedure, you acknowledge you have been informed about its risks and consequences and take responsibility for the medical decisions made, together with the economical costs of any future treatments.

I AUTHORIZE the taking of photographs and videos for an appropriate diagnostic evaluation, and for the control of the assessment and results. I also authorize the taking of photographs of the treated area for scientific, educational or clinical purposes, and I understand that their use is not a violation of privacy or confidentiality, rights to which I am entitled.

I KNOW my data will be treated in an automated manner, which I have authorized after my rights have been explained to me pursuant to the LOPD (Spanish Organic Act on Data Protection) in force: rights of access, rectification, cancellation and objection established by the Act, and after expressing I can address the Clinic in writing, notwithstanding the provisions of Section 8 of the Act about health-related data. With my signature, I give my express consent for my personal data to be handled by the CLINIC for their own purposes.

I am aware that my signature and this consent don't assume any kind of waiver to future claims, both clinical and legal. I am also aware that I can withdraw my signature from this consent at any time prior to the execution of the treatment.

I have clarified any doubts about everything that has been mentioned above, and I fully understand this CONSENT DOCUMENT, standing by each and all of its points; by signing the document, I ratify and consent to the execution of the treatment.
