INFORMED CONSENT DOCUMENT FOR TREATMENT OF CHEMICAL PEELS

In observance of Act 41/2002, regulating patient's autonomy and rights and duties concerning information and clinical documents (BOE 15-11-02), we offer you, in writing and in an understandable manner, information about MEDICAL CHEMICAL PEELS. However, said information has already been concisely and orally provided to you by the undersigned doctor, who also, and at your request, has addressed all your questions, as well as those related to the treatment. This document is just the graphic transcription of said information, to help you understand it and motivate a thoughtful and deliberate authorization.

It is important that you read this information carefully and in its entirety. Please sign or put your initials on every page, thus indicating that you have read and signed the consent document for the procedure recommended by your doctor.

I HEREBY STATE:

That I REQUEST AND AUTHORIZE Doctor _____
_____, graduated in Medicine and Surgery, with medical license number _____, to perform upon me a treatment known as MEDICAL PEELS, having chosen this instead of the alternatives, namely _____.

In this case, peels will be performed with _____.

I KNOW and ACCEPT the physician's professional training to perform this treatment.

I CONSENT, if needed, to the administration of local anesthesia by, or under instructions of, Dr.

The substances and machines involved have been authorized for use in aesthetic medicine, and show the CE brand and its corresponding sanitary registration number.

I CONFIRM that the treatment mentioned above has been fully explained to me by the physician in words I can understand, including typical risks involved, undesired effects, the risks specific to me, and also discomfort or, occasionally, pain I may feel with normal post-treatment. I have also been told about other options available in the market, together with pros and cons of each one. Taking this into account, I have chosen the treatment described above.

I have also been informed, in terms of probability, about the results of the procedure according to references from comparative scientific literature, and the professional's previous experience executing these procedures.

BRIEF EXPLANATION OF THE TREATMENT:

Chemical peeling is a procedure that has been performed for many years to treat several skin alterations. It is intended to repair and regenerate skin by eliminating superficial or deep layers of the skin, depending on the selected kind of peeling. These non-invasive techniques can be used to treat conditions like damage caused by sun exposure, wrinkles, acne scars, stretch marks and irregular pigmentation. There are several techniques to apply chemical peels and medications for skin treatments.

Alternative forms of treatment consist of not treating the skin with chemical peeling agents or other medications. Skin lesions and wrinkles can be improved by means of other treatments like dermabrasion, laser treatment, or surgery to stretch flaccid skin. There are possible risks and complications associated with alternative kinds of treatments.

The chemical peels treatment involves applying a chemical product (usually an acid) on the skin, which has been previously prepared. The duration of the treatment varies based on the kind of peeling, but it ranges from 10 to 30 minutes. A few days after the treatment, your skin will look dry, and even small scabs may occur based on the peeling's depth; this will be followed by desquamation, the intensity of which will also vary based on the kind of peeling and skin. Finally, skin is regenerated.

I ACCEPT that there may be RISKS AND COMPLICATIONS described by medical science as inherent to this treatment. Some of the main risks that have been explained to me include:

- Risks and complications common to any aesthetic treatment, including other allergic reactions to the substance used, edemas, or inflammation that will usually resolve in a short period of time without the need to be treated.
- Risks and complications specific to this treatment, that have been explained to me and that I have accepted. Especially:
 - Infection. Infections are rare, but bacterial or viral infections may occur. If you have a history of infections due to the Herpes Simplex virus around the mouth, an infection may reappear after a chemical peel. To prevent an infection due to this virus, specific medications must be prescribed before the peel. If any kind of skin infection occurs, additional treatments may be necessary, including antibiotics.

- Scarring. Although a good healing after the procedure is expected, abnormal scars can occur both in the skin and in deep tissues. In rare cases, keloid scars may occur. Scars can be unsightly and have a different color than the surrounding skin. Additional treatments may be necessary to treat abnormal scarring.
- Change of color. Chemical peeling agents may permanently clear up skin's natural color. The possibility exists of irregular variations in skin color, with lighter or darker areas. Permanent darkening of the skin has been described after a chemical peel. There may be a line of demarcation between normal skin and skin treated with peels. Redness after peels may last for an unacceptably long time.
- Poor result. There is the possibility that these procedures cause poor results. Peelings and skin treatments may cause unacceptable visible deformities, skin crusting, loss of function and permanent changes in skin color. You may disagree with the final results of chemical peels or other skin treatments.
- Recurrence of skin lesions. In some situations, skin lesions can reoccur after a peel or skin treatment. Additional treatment or secondary surgery may be necessary.
- Cancer or skin diseases. Peelings and skin treatments do not offer protection against the future development of skin cancer or other diseases.
- Allergic reactions. In rare cases, allergic reactions to medications and agents used in chemical peels or skin treatments have been described. In rare cases, local allergies to bandages, preservatives used in cosmetics or topical preparations have been observed. Systemic reactions, which are more serious, can occur with medications used during the procedure or prescribed afterwards. Allergic reactions may require additional treatment.
- Sunburns. Certain kinds of chemical peeling agents can permanently set skin sunburns. After a chemical peel, the skin may lose its normal ability to change its color (darken) when exposed to sunlight.
- Absence of permanent results. Chemical peels or other skin treatments may not completely improve or prevent future wrinkles in the skin. No technique can reverse the aging signs of skin. Additional surgical procedures may be necessary to stretch flaccid skin afterwards. You may have to continue a maintenance program after a chemical peels procedure.
- Delay in healing. After a peel or other skin treatments, healing may last longer than expected. Skin healing may cause fine, fragile skin, which is different from the normal redness of the skin after a peeling.
- Heart problems. Some chemical peeling agents have been reported to cause abnormal heart rates, that may require medical treatment if they occur during the procedure. It is a potentially serious problem.

Unknown Risks. There is the possibility that additional risks factors of chemical peels and skin treatments are discovered.

I have been correctly informed, even in writing (information documents) and/or using images, about this treatment's characteristics: its fundamentals, the manner and details of its execution, its action mechanisms, its immediate effects, the process and evolution of the necessary supplementary treatments to observe in the following days, weeks or months, the cares and precautions to adopt in the following hours or days, the variability of the time necessary to fully recover; therefore, I acknowledge that no guarantee can be given to me as to the date when I can resume my regular activities (emotional, social, work and sports).

I ATTEST I have not left out or altered any data when showing my surgical medical history and records, especially those concerning allergies and diseases or personal risks.

The Medical History and results from tests performed on the patient don't advise against using the appropriate medical procedure when there isn't, a priori, any risks that may have determined the failure of the technique objectively considered, and which means to meet your expectations.

I RECOGNIZE that, during the treatment, unforeseen conditions may necessitate different procedures than those described above. Therefore, I hereby expressly authorize said procedures, including my transfer to a hospital center. In case of complications during the treatment, I authorize the Hospital to request the assistance they deem necessary from other specialists, in their best professional judgment.

I HAVE BEEN INFORMED that the number of product sessions necessary to obtain the desired effect is only illustrative, being impossible to know the exact number of sessions that will be necessary in advance, because each patient's absorption/reaction is different. Results are obtained with greater efficacy if the treatment performed is supplemented with other treatments that will improve its effects.

If, during treatment, the healthcare staff was accidentally exposed to my blood, according to the principles of good medical practice I have been informed of the need to perform the proper analytical determinations on my blood, related to potential pathologies of blood transmission, to adopt the most suitable preventive measures.

I AGREE to do my best to follow the doctor's instructions to the letter before, during and after the treatment mentioned above. I take responsibility for complying with post treatment measures recommended by the Hospital, as well as attending control visits suggested by the doctor.

I UNDERSTAND that the goal of the treatment is to improve my appearance, with the possibility that some imperfection remains and that the result may not be what I expected. In this sense, I have been informed that the aesthetic result of the treatment depends on factors like how easily you scar, and the formation or non-formation of keloids. I am aware that the medical field is not an exact science, and that absolute perfection cannot be guaranteed. I understand the result may not be as expected and acknowledge that I haven't been given any guarantee at all.

Medical action might not end in itself, and subsequent treatment action might be necessary to reach the goal you're consenting to.

The cost of the treatment includes several charges for the services provided. The total includes your doctor's fees and the cost of materials, equipment or product. The charges for this procedure don't include possible future costs for additional procedures of your choice, or that you require to review, optimize or complete your result. There may be additional charges due to complications arising from the treatment. Charges for secondary treatments concerning check-ups and charges that haven't been previously arranged will also be your responsibility. By signing the consent for this procedure, you acknowledge you have been informed about its risks and consequences and take responsibility for the medical decisions made, together with the economical costs of any future treatments.

I AUTHORIZE the taking of photographs and videos for an appropriate diagnostic evaluation, and for the control of the assessment and results. I also authorize the taking of photographs of the treated area for scientific, educational or clinical purposes, and I understand that their use is not a violation of privacy or confidentiality, rights to which I am entitled.

I KNOW my data will be treated in an automated manner, which I have authorized after my rights have been explained to me pursuant to the LOPD (Spanish Organic Act on Data Protection) in force: rights of access, rectification, cancellation and objection established by the Act, and after expressing I can address the Clinic in writing, notwithstanding the provisions of Section 8 of the Act about health-related data. With my signature, I give my express consent for my personal data to be handled by the CLINIC for their own purposes.

I am aware that my signature and this consent don't assume any kind of waiver to future claims, both clinical and legal. I am also aware that I can withdraw my signature from this consent at any time prior to the execution of the treatment.

I have clarified any doubts about everything that has been mentioned above, and I fully understand this CONSENT DOCUMENT, standing by each and all of its points; by signing the document, I ratify and consent to the execution of the treatment.
